The New Mexico Agricultural college, favored by a westerly gale this past Saturday at Albuquerque, beat the university 27 to 6. The university boys did not have a chance, and only in the final quarter, when their line was freshened with subs, did they pull the collegians to equal terms. The would-be farmers scored in every preceding session. By winning Saturday the Aggies advanced one step nearer the coveted football championship of New Mexico and Arizona for 1912, having but one more game to play this season, that with the New Mexico Military Institute on Thanksgiving day. PRINCESS DIED ON PYRE

Constantinople, Nov. 16.—On a pyre built by herself and decorated with flowers and priceless tapestries and jewels, Zekie, the oldest daughter of the Sultan, burned herself to death today.

After the defeat of the Turkish army caused her suicide. The tragedy was enacted in the garden of her palace at Abusheil.

Princess Zekie's husband was Nour eddin Pasha, a general of a division of the army and a son of the famous Osman Pasha Chazi, "the victorious."

He was fighting under Nazim Pasha, the Turkish minister of war who, although he declared to the sultan he would die on the battle field rather than return in defeat, has been overwhelmed with defeat and is now advising the Turkish ministers to abandon the war.

As the news of the successive Turkish defeats came in Princess Zekie became nervous. After news of the defeat of the Turks at Lule Burgas leaked out in the Ottoman capital she determined to commit suicide.
